Powell County Gasoline

Bluegrass gasoline is made at the refinery at Slade in Powell county; at Pryse in Estill county and at Lexington in Fayette county. Franklin Smith, a Clay City young man, is head bookkeeper for the refinery at Slade. Randall Stokeley, a former Powell county boy, is general manager at the Company's office at Lexington. That's why the Clay City Motors Company will handle Bluegrass gasoline. It is in keeping with their policy to patronize home business and home people. Buy Powell county made gasoline from Clay City Motors Company. Besides helping home people, you get the best product.

Alf Patton Breaks Leg

Superintendent Alf Patton, of the Tomlinson take down table and hoghead factory, received a broken bone in the right leg Friday morning about 8 o'clock when he fell from the platform at the plant.

Mr. Patton was superintending the construction of the large dry kiln plant when he lost his balance, falling several feet to the ground below. He was taken to his home where medical aid was summoned and he was reported on Friday afternoon to be resting as well as could be expected.—Winchester Sun.

Gasoline up One Cent

The price of gasoline was Saturday advanced one cent on the gallon by the refineries, and then passed on to the consumer. The consumer cannot see that it is worth any more to him this week than it was last week, but still he must pay the difference.

Injured by Baseball

Malcolm Strange, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Strange, was injured Saturday afternoon while playing a game of baseball at Stanton. He was rushed to a hospital at Winchester, where he was operated on, and is improving now very nicely.

Pherigo Not Yet Appointed

The report in last week's Times that H. H. Pherigo had been appointed postmaster at Clay City was an error. He has only been nominated for the place and this nomination is yet lacking of confirmation.

"When I began taking Tanlac I only weighed 98 pounds, now weigh 125 pounds and never felt better in my life," says Mrs. Peden, of Huntsville, Ala. C. Shimmfessel.

Local Man in Successful Raids

Jas. G. Fugate, a constable of Powell county; C. P. Dennis and L. C. Tolson, deputies under Sheriff Kincaid, of Lee county, brought to Beattyville last Wednesday a copper worm, also one man, Ben Flynn. 500 gallons of beer was poured out. The officers reported the outfit found on Yellow Jacket, a tributary of Miller's Creek in Lee county and on the lands of Thos. Shackelford.

Still No. 2 was found on the property of Miller Prewitt Goff Land Oil & Gas Co. The above named company owns several hundred acres of land and resides at Winchester and has several tenants on their land, and perhaps many people living near it, who in their absence might attempt to operate a distillery on their lands. At any rate this outfit was captured and one Arthur Stamper and his two step sons arrested. These gallant officers are entitled to much credit for good work they have done.

If there were more men farming and fewer working at moonshine stills, the homes of our people would be happier and the children of the country have a better chance to become useful men and women.

A Sprinkle of Fruit Left

Notwithstanding the heavy frosts and freezes the past few weeks, there is a sprinkle of fruit of all kinds scattered over the county, of which we should be very thankful for.

Thousands of thin, frail men and women have reported an astonishing and rapid increase in weight as a result of taking Tanlac. C. Shimmfessel.

Much is being said about Germany paying her indemnity promptly to the Allies, but we hear nothing of the Allies meeting promptly their obligations to the United States. If the Allies cannot meet their obligations when they get indemnity from the enemy, how do they expect Germany to be able to pay them when that country gets no indemnity.

Hello Vaughn's Mill, this is No. Unteen Hundred and Steen on the wire. Glad to know you. I am the fellow that writes brave things about people and then has to fight mosquitoes in the deep recesses of the swamp while the faithful editor remains at the desk and takes the knocks for printing it.
